

I CLEANED OUT MY WARDROBE

“I Cleaned Out My Wardrobe” is the title of an urban intervention and online platform conceptualized and organized by artist Toni Meyer and art scientist and sociologist Aileen Treusch.

1st Station:
Munich in Cooperation with Making Crises Visible

I cleaned out my wardrobe, online platform, 2020

THE PERFORMANCE.

Fashion (industry) has always reflected a culture's priorities and aspirations and is an expression of achievements but also weaknesses. The so called “Clothies” wander through urban space manifesting a moment of abundance and disorientation. Through their street appearance, the “Clothies” show how much we have and how little we need. Enter the platform and meet VAINS, NORTH and BLUE.

THE PLATFORM.

“I cleaned out my wardrobe” is a collaborative platform where art works, impressions and discourse come together. It aims to provide a digital setting for artistic research and practice that investigate the interconnectivity of art and socio-cultural environment.

www.icleanedoutmywardrobe.com